* The names marked with an asterisk show the commencement of the modern part of the roll, but by whom these subsequent additions were made is not known; they are in a plain modern hand, written some seventy or eighty years ago.

The names thus marked show the addition of the three last generations in another hand, of a few years later date than the last. The old part of this pedigree appears to have been engraved and illuminated in the lifetime of Robert Hesketh, the husband of Mary Stanley and Blanch Twyford, about the year 1505, but by whom there is no record. It is elaborate and beautiful in design and execution. Through the whole length runs an oak branch, with leaves and acorns, for the male line, and rose and laurel branches for the lines of the heiresses. Behind the roundle of each descent, from Sir William Hesketh (1 Ed. I.) to Robert Hesketh and Mary Stanley (temp. Elizabeth), is a full-length portrait of the descendant and his wife or wives, the knights being clad in armour and the rest in the gay and picturesque civilian costumes of the periods in which they respectively lived. Some of these portraits are doubtless from old altartombs, long since destroyed, but the later paintings—from about Edward IV.'s time or little later—appear to have been copied from authentic portraits of the several persons represented. These heraldic miniatures are all in excellent preservation, the colours being perfectly bright and fresh. Beneath each descent is a somewhat large square shield, containing four quarters, splendidly enblazoned, being at the foot of the pedigree.

This roll is on the first vellum and of unusual breadth (one foot nine), measuring upwards of eighteen feet in length.

The notes scattered up and down the MS. are valuable additions, particularly that relating to the Harrington family, the information it contains having been looked for in vain by experienced antiquaries. But besides the marriages here mentioned, Katherine married firstly Roger Hallon, of Hulton, Esq., and Margaret, another sister and coheiress, married firstly, Christopher Hilton, of Farnworth, Esq. A very rare letter, despatched from the Torbuchs of Torbok to Thomas Hesdyk, Esq., of Lainou's Inn—^{the only Lancashire letter of its age that has been published or printed}—and corroborating the correctness of a portion of them in a remarkable manner:—

"To my Cousin Rauf Torbok esquier be this directed,

"Cosyn I comande me unto you & c. And where" am informed by this laire William Wahunley that ye intend to take for frum hym 'c' en lands of yours which hath hym oute of mynde to le holding I heartly pray you to be gentle man & t' hym in the same so that he may occupy as we haue done abytime: Also I am informed by the said bayer that on tenken hauuldes of the felds baythe a way tolde his bayer lynghe welie as hee saudolys en trary to ryght & gode consons: "cosyn I pray you to shewe w^t the said hauuldes so y^t the said myght rest vnto soue reasonable day & I shallabe rety to me you on sayd grounde & y^t at oþer to he dounwe of ryght seculab hadde. We haue and fat cosyn this bayer schallbe after the d'yses of my lady Harrington ten . . . my cosyn treasur & his W^t who hath made me thair stured of all th^t . . . in this cam^t & therfor I pray you to be gentle man^r to the bayer . . . for my sake & yf y^t truelth in me to do you Any plesur I schallbe as glade . . . our lordle Whom kepe you.

"Alex' Radcliffe."

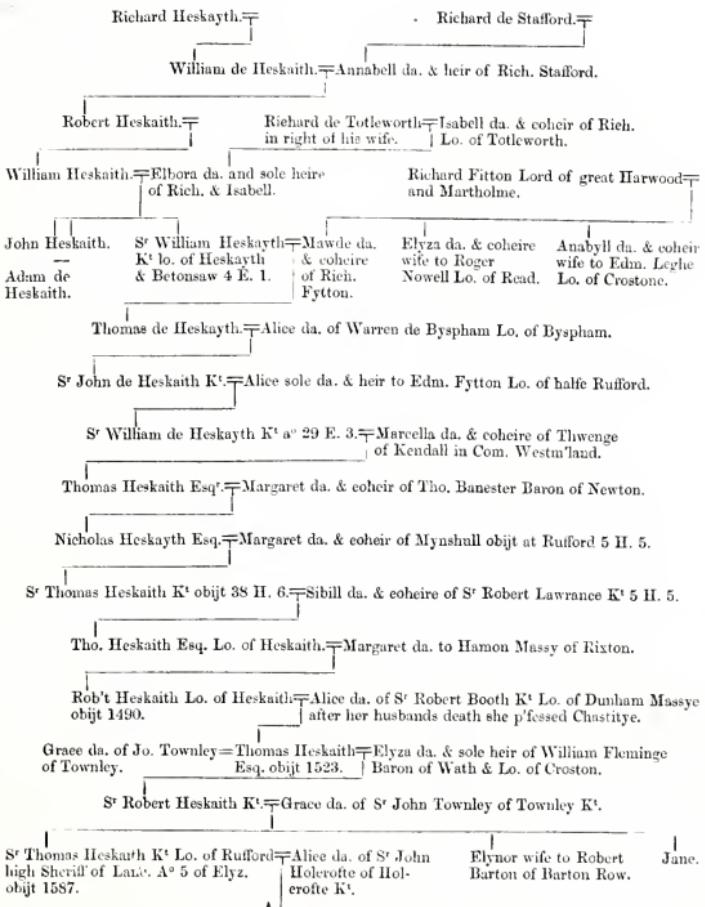

* Lady Harrington was the widow of Sir James, and being the daughter of Sir Alexander Radcliffe, would probably be the brother of the writer of this letter. The Treasons were a Northamptonshire family, which facts, together with the appearance, style, and calligraphy of the letter, fix its age pretty accurately at about four hundred years.
